Becky Andersen : We're Not Sixteen Anymore before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised We're Not Sixteen Anymore:

Toward the end of the visit, my ever-loving and super sweet mother tried to gently suggest I might want some friends. At that point, my blunt-and-to-the-point father spelled it out for me: "She means MAN friends."All I could blurt out was: "No, thanks, I'm good."excerpt from Becky Anderson "We're Not Sixteen Anymore: A Baby Boomer's Guide to Online Dating or The Saga of an Old Prune Her Dates"First off I have to say that Becky is definitely NOT an old prune! I have known and worked with Becky for many years, and she is as funny in person as her book is. I cannot imagine being back on the dating scene when close to 60 years old (I am only a few years younger than Becky). I applaud her bravery for getting back out there after her husband died. Of course, dating had changed quite a bit since Becky was in high school, and she didn't know how to get started in this technological age. Her escapades on the dating site, in e-mails, meeting up with dates and setting up rescue calls are hilarious. Before writing the book, Becky posted some of these stories on Facebook, but it was more fun to read the stories in this book following her process from registering with the dating site to finding her future husband. I like that each chapter told about one dating episode, but the themes she chose for each were a hoot. This fun little book is for anyone of a certain age who needs a good, wholesome laugh or wants a user's guide for the mature online dating scene. My best to Becky as she starts the next chapters of her life! 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. A Lighthearted and Enjoyable Read By Stefanie Kramer Becky is a great storyteller with a gift for humor. Although I'm a Gen Xer, I found the book relatable and a completely enjoyable read. Would love a sequel to find out how the honeymoon stage of her life after electronic dating and her new love are all working out! 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Laughter is good! By Jul Becky Anderson provides us with a trip back in time as she wrote about her current experience about online dating. I laughed so hard I had tears pouring out of my eyes multiple times throughout this quick read. It was enjoyable and left me wanting a bit more at the end. Great job Becky Anderson!

You've seen ads for online dating on television, in newspapers, and (naturally) on computer popups. The models are cute, handsome, young, or at least looking good for their age. But what REALLY happens when a computer semi-illiterate 60ish widow is prodded into this very 21st century form of dating---when the last time she dated was when Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon? Getting back into dating makes her feel young. Actual dating makes her realize she is NOT sixteen anymore.

About the Author A Baby Boomer native Iowan, Becky Andersen married her high school sweetheart, has a Bachelor of Science in sociology from Iowa State University, is mom to two daughters and "MoMo" to five grandchildren. She married her cyber sweetheart, and happily expanded her heart and soul to include three more children and four more grandchildren. She and her husband love to travel, garden, and entertain.
