Leo Pardonni is enjoying a carefree lifestyle in cosmopolitan Paris when he receives two mysterious phone calls that force him to return to the home of his elderly parents, in a village in the middle of Tuscany, where nothing happens. Or so he thinks. A series of unconnected events turn his life upside down, as old friends and acquaintances come together and a cacophony of fashion, food, conspiracies, money laundering and a fatal accident put the sleepy village, that his parents call home, into the world's spotlight. In his new book, Welcome back Leo Pardonni, Francesco Dori takes you on a joyful romp through the hills of Tuscany, turning everyday trials into entertaining experiences. Who else could combine an octogenarians circumcision with mens tampons and garlic?
