Must read for all pharmacists and anybody who has ever had a prescription filled!By Pharmacy BurnoutI've been reading the Drugmonkey's blog for years and decided it was finally time to help out a fellow pharmacist who has helped me deal with the daily struggles in the crazy pharmacy world. All I can say is "Thank You"! You tell it like it is and say what many of us are thinking but too afraid to speak out.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A new respect for the guy behind the counterBy D. PhoebeI instantly liked the title. I can't really give an in depth review, as I purchased this book for my son who recently graduated from Pharmacy school. However, from the bit I browsws I could tell it had just the right amount of dark humor and sarcasm he would enjoy. From what he has told me as he continues to read the book, I made a good selection. My son has worked as a retail pharmacist in training for quite awhile and he layghs along and relates to much of what "Drugmonkey" talks about.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. If you work in Pharmacy - READ THIS! Or just read it because it is very funny!By yeah-and?Brilliant. How have I failed to review this!? Drugmonkey is a great writer. I was reading his blog for awhile before I bought this book. I passed it along to a Pharmacist that I worked with. Trench humor at it's finest.

" I call your doctors office and am put on hold for 5 minutes, then informed that your prescription was phoned in to my competitor on the other side of town. Phoning the competitor, I am immediately put on hold for 5 minutes before speaking to a clerk, who puts me back on hold to wait for the pharmacist. Your prescription is then transferred to me, and now I have to get the 2 phone calls that have been put on hold while this was being done. Now I return to the counter to ask if we've ever filled prescriptions for you before. For some reason, you think that "for you" means "for your cousin" and you answer my question with a "yes", whereupon I go the computer and see you are not on file. The phone rings..."

About the AuthorThe Drugmonkey has been a community pharmacist for nearly 20 years. He has slowly been developing into the type of guy you would never expect to do such a thing. He's so quiet, never bothers anyone, just kinda keeps to himself, you know? His writing may be the only thing keeping him from doing such a thing.
